ne days have now elapsed since the departure of the aside expedition, and still we have no tidings of its ations. I can scarcely say that any fears of a vic-us result are entertained; but nevertheless, great ety is felt as to its whereabouts, and whether General side has structure blow as yet. It is true that, to the Port Royal expedition, a day or two after parture of the fleet a violent storm has prevailed, ich in the latter case disabled some of the expeditionary sels; still, having advices that the command of General sale, skill, having advices that the command of General saled made Hatterss on Wednesday, a sufficient period passed for an attack to have already taken place and a sel returned to announce the result. However, the mander of the expedition is a prudent as well as an implished offser, and, as he has probably been forested of an approaching storm, he has delayed his sive movements for an auspicious moment, then to rally on all points at once.

The programme by which the fleet is governed is, that four points are to be attacked by the expedition, and Gen. Burnside has issued strict orders that nothing concerning his movements is to be made public until after the fourth position of the enemy shall have been taken.

I may be transgressing his orders in publishing this fact; but some of your contemporarile have. but some of your contemporaries have, in Gen. Burnside's case as well as in that of Gen. Sherman, seen at to publish all they knew concerning it—so much so that the rebels had all the particulars before we knew of it at Old Point all they knew concerning it—so much so that the rebols that all the particulars before we knew of it at Old Point Comfort. However, every moment we are expecting to thear news from the expedition, and lookouts are stationed the observe the first approach of a roturn vessel that bears intelligence of its operations.

This morning the pickets at Whitegate, on the Fox Hill road, apprehended thirteen persons, all of whom they found congregated at a house in the neighborhood. They were brought to Acting Brigadier Gen. Max Weber, commanding Camp Hamilton, to whom they stated that they were brought to Acting Brigadier Gen. Max Weber, commanding Camp Hamilton, to whom they stated that they were Union men living outside of the pickets. They informed Gen. Weber that Magruder's force intend to attack us very shortly by way of Back river, and that great preparations are being made by the rebois at Yorktown to make an advance on and annihilate Camp Hamilton and Fortress Monroe. I suppose that Magruder was in his usual happy and elevated condition—i. e., as sailors term it, "half seas over"—and when he coincs to his senses (which, by the way, is only semi-consionally) he will reflect seriously on the eno mity of his undertaking, and not be so precipitate as to rush into the lion's jaws. But Magruder may, in one of his bacchanatian freaks, order an advance on our tines, and the consequence will be that, if he returns at all, he will be a wiser and soberer, if not a better man. It is no trilling matter to attack so fine and well disciplined a command as that of General Weber, and, notwithstanding the chivalry boast that "one Southern man is equal to three Yankees," this fine illusion may be dispelled rather unpleasantly. But I have no approhension of such an affair; neither has General Wool, General Weber or "any other man" here. Magruder is perfectly well contented to remain whore he is and enjoy his "eye opener" in peace. He is not the man to risk a battle and run the danger of being cut off from his grog, even for a few hou headquarters at the camp.

The roads are so but that it would be a very difficult undertaking to march an army to battle. Neither artillery, infantry nor baggage wagons could be transported, and it is extremely difficult to march cavalry through the deep mire accasioned by the incessant rains of nearly two weeks duration. We are therefore as safe here as we should be in Boston, as far as an attack from the robels is concerned; but our commanders act on the maxim that "eternal vigiliance is the price of liberty," and if a fight is at hand they wish to be counted in.

In a previous letter I published a General Order, No. 143, emanating from General Wool, appointing a Board of Examiners, consisting of Colonel T. J. Cram, inspector General; Colonel Max Weber, Acting Brigadier General; Colonel Powell T. Weyman, Sixteenth Massachusetts Volunteers; Colonel J. W. Andrews, First Delaware Volunteers, and Colonel Joseph B. Carr, Second regiment New York Volunteers, to examine Colonel Joseph Harlan, of the Eleventh Fennsylvania cavalry, as to his capacity to command, propriety of conduct, &c., and report to the President. This Board has been in session ten days, and concluded its labors on the 9th instant. Whether their report was in favor of Colonel Harlan or not I am unable to ascortain, as the Board is sworn to secresy; but on the 18th instant the following order was received by Major General Wool, which, however, does not mention whether the Board has reported for or against Colonel Harlan. The mannexed is a true copy of the order of Adjutant General Thomas:—

Major General Jons E. Wool, Commanding Fortress Morroe, Virginia:—

GENERAL—The proceedings of a Board of Officers, convened at Fortress Monroe, Virginia, by special orders No. 143, Beadquarters Department of Virginia, have been laid before the Secretary of War. He directs me to say that he desires Col. Harlan to be retained in command of his regiment. I am, General, very respectfully, your obedient servant,

L. TalOMAS, Adjutant General.

The troops all round here are in great glee, which may be accounted for by the United States paymasters having been around. Major B. F. Camp has been engaged in paying off the Tenth New York Volunteers and other regiments. Major Williams has left about $100,000 behind him, and Major Haskin will be here in a day or two to proceed to Hatteras to pay off the troops there.

By the way, as I am on the subject of paying, I must mention that great antipathy is exhibited by parties here towards the United States Treasury notes. The Adams Express, Post Office, and C. C. Willard, of the Hygia Hotel, accept them, but as a general thing the Treasury notes seem to be in bad odor. Why does Congress not legalize the issue, in order that this money may rank as legal tender? Since the fact was announced that the United States Treasury and the Eastern banks have suspended specie payment, bullien has become a rarity, and I can secretly see any material difference between the worthless shinplasters of the rebols and our a-hittle-morafancy gotten-up Treasury notes. In either case it is hard to receive any charge. Gold and sliver seem to be at a high premium, and for a week or two past sliver and agold are a rarity which is not beheld every day. The paymasters bring only about one per cent of their funds in specie, just sufficient to pay the fractions of dollars, and hence the searcity of bullion.

A flag of truce came up from Norfolk a little while before the lialtimore boat left, bringing twenty-one sailors from the wrecked ship York, which stranded on Bordon's Bank, S. C. on the 5th inst. The Y

Sound.

There will probably be a flag of truce from here tomorrow, when we shall undoubtedly hear additional particulars. From the same source I learn that ox Freeident Tylor died in Richmond.

The reserve is now being organized at Bardstown and will probably advance to Green rivor as soon as a grand forward novement shall take place.

The exact time at which the impatience of the friends of the linion for the aggressive employment of our armies will be relieved in this department by a movement upon Tenne's ee depends, I believe, upon the developement of matters in other quarters rather than in this As already stated above, the proparation in the State, the other progression of the state of the impending compagin, although General Broll to take the others' pour plays, although General Broll to take the others' pour hours' notice. But it cannot, or coursed to open the ball single handed. The centre of the Great almost open sumed for a moment that he will be received as may of the Union will not move and the two wings on the Potenna and the Mississippi be allowed to remain idle spectators. Whatever the real plans of Gen. McClollan may be, everything goes to indicate that a simultaneous attack will be made at all points by the federal forces, and hence symptoms of activity need not be looked for in this department until the columns of loyal soldiery in other latitudes shall show signs of motion. Battless will occur no sooner in the southern part of this State than near Columbus, Winchester, Fortress Monree, Beaufort, and porhaps also Manawas.

The only remaining drawbacks in this department that might be pleaded as impediments to an alvance, although they would even not prove so absolutely in case of necessity, are: first, the insufficiency of the single pour the country through which the advancing columns will be contract

HOW THE REBELL SOFT ARMS—SECESSION TYRANNY.

[From the Louisville Demorcat, Jan. 25, 1862.]

A gentleman, who is just up from Green river, handed us the following, published on a slip. It is one of the most atrocious measures of despotsm ever put in practice. Every gun must by delivered up, if its owner will not volunteer, and every man who has no gun must pay twenty dollars, if he is worth $500, and those who fail to conform are to be fined fifty dollars and be imprisoned till the fine is paid. Such is the protection Buckner gives to the people of Kentucky, and these are the rights they are to secure by joining this infernal robellion. A right-cour retribution is close at hand, and these despots will pay the penalty of their multiplied crimes against society—

SOMETHING ABOUT BOWLING GREEN.

PALL WITHOUT A FIGHT.

[Correspondence of the Cincinnati Gazette.]

Persons arrived from Bowling Green recently, dec secssionists are growing daily in the graces of their spirit. In acts of strecious villany perpetrated Union men and women, each day excels its predeces No wonder. They have found out that uncondition under the property of Union refugees, there will be no taliation in the wait of configeation. They know well the Kentucky Committee of Manipulation will set that.

to the property of Union refugees, there will be no retailation in the way of confiscation. They know very well the Kentucky Committee of Manipulation will see to that.

At Bowling Green they have a few pleess of navy size artillery—aixty-feur pounders I believe. The artillerists the other day wishing to try one of them at an object, used the residence of Judge Underwood as a target. No thanks to them, but rather to the indifferent quality of the gun, or the inaccuracy of the gunner, the house was not hit—distance little more than a mile. The Confederate officers are: having a grand time, driving Union men out of their houses, or rather Union ladies where husbands have been compelled to leave home, and using the for quarters and hospitals. Buckner is comfortably from the residence of somebody; but the dwelling is not a adequate style, and he has notified Judge Loving that he must have his. I am told the Judge is quite sick; but he will not be able to get off on such a plea as that. The great Foyd—ne of the most amiable and estimable of gentlemen—cocupies the residence of Captain Grider. When Mr. Grider was forced to leave home, he left his dwelling in the care of his aged mother, a lady between seventy-five and oighty years of age. One would suppose this case, at least, would have been made an exception among savages; but our Southern brothern are not weak nimded, like savages. The lady of Mr. Barker (who is himself a refugee,) was forced to leave her house in Bowling Green, and rent one in the country. Here she expected to be unfinelested. But the 9 conservatives? followed, and drove her from this also.

The rebel authorities are gathering up all the slaves of loyal men they can find, confining them in jail or sending them further South. One loyal gentioman was moved to tears, when he informed me that they had imprisoned and mattreated a faithful old slave of his, to such a dagree that beind. The old negro's wife, who had been soperamutated by the kind master, and even furnished with a servant to attend her in

The Irish Brigade in Virginia.

CAMP CALIFORNIA, Va., Jan. 9, 1862.

The Irish Brigade in Virginia—Its Officers and Men—Camp
Life—T. F. Meagher—Picket Duty, &c.
As the multitudinous readers of the Herald may like to know how the Irish Brigade fares since its arrival on the south side of the Potomac, I have constituted myself its general correspondent for the time being, in order that the laudable curiosity of the public may, in some measure, be gratified.

Whoever is familiar with the Harald maps will not fail

o discover thereon the town of Alexandria, located on the Potomac, a few miles below the federal capital Well, about three miles from that town, and a short distance from the Alexandria and Orange Railroad, are encamped the Sixty-ninth, Sixty-third and Eighty-eighth camped the Sixty-minin, Sixty-mind and rightly eightle regiments, New York State Volunteers, which constitute, respectively, the First, Third and Fourth regiments of our brigade. The Second has not yet arrived from Phila-delphia, and the Fifth, or at least the larger portion of its is still in Washington, awaiting its horses, guns and sent location—the one from Moridian Hill, D. C., and the other direct from New York—on Sunday, the 1st ult. the Fourth made their appearance on Thursday, the 18th We are located on a series of small hills, and in imme diate connection with each other, so that a visiter could scarcely tell the difference between one and the other. The location—chosen for us by General Summer, in whose division we are—is exceedingly healthy; frewood, thanks to the labors of the New Jersey regiments who precaled as it is in quantity we could have nothing to complain of. The latter inconvenience does not, however, produce us, is abundant, and if the water was as good in quality as it is in quantity we could have nothing to complain of. The latter inconvenience does not, however, produce any serious results, as our boys are in the habit of putting "a little something" in their water to purify it. The sanitary condition of the camps is excellent. Not only has no death occurred, but I believe there is not a serious case of sickness to be found it any of the hospitals. The government, too, has done all that could plassibly be done to feed and clothe our men, and it is no exaggoration to say that a happier or more loyal set of men cannot be found in the entire army than the Irish brigate.

Their efficiency also as soldiers becomes every day more and more marked. Morning and afternoon drills, each of two hours duration, are regularly performed, and hence many weeks pass we shall be able to present a front to the enemy that will rather astonish him. The Sixty-inth regiment, the favorite in this neighborhood, is decidedily the best drilled of the three, though, as far as fighting material is concerned, I do not think it presents any superiority over the others. It has had, however, the sivantage of excellent field officers, two of whom. Colonel Nigent and Lioutenant Colonel James Kelly, hold commissions as captains in the regular army, and the third, Major Cavanagh, a captain in the old Sixty-inith, is perhaps one of the best posted men on military science in the volunteer force. Those gentlemen are unromitting in their attention to the regiment. Every requirement or military discipline is rigidity but kindly enforcei, and the consequent regularity and order which govern their camp remind one more of the regular service than of the conduct of a heterogeneous mass of men of all conditions of life suddenly called from civic pursuits. I am glad to say that this has been fully appreciated by General Sunner, and on the very first day of the arrival of the Sixty ninth he appointed Colonel Frank, to examine and report on the condition of the a as a military leader as he already is as an orator and author.

Until Friday last our brigade had nothing to do but to drill. On the evening of that day, however, an order was received by General Nugent to despatch one of the regiments to Edsell's Hill for picket duty. The Sixtyninth was accordingly ordered out, and in one hour were on the way rejoicing, delighted at the chance of a little actual fighting. Edsell's Hill is some four miles from our camp, "as the crow files," and is the headquarters of the picket force which has charge of the Springfield road and the railroad to Fairfax. On Senday night the boys were fired upon simultaneously from different points, and, of course, returned the fire with interest; but as the night was pitchy dark no damage was done on sither side, it is believed. The Sixty-ninth was relieved by the Sixty third on Tuesday, which in its turn will be relieved by the Eighty-cighth on Saturday next, and so on every four days till the whole division is exhausted.

We are looking with intense anxiety to the columns of the Heanth (received here regularly each morning) for some intimation of a forward movement. We are all ready and impationt for it, and let me assure our friends in New York that when it does come the brigade will be found equal to the emergency.

NEWS FROM THE STATE CAPITAL.

NEW YORK LEGISLATURE.

ALBANY, Jan. 27, 1862.

The Senate met at half-past seven P. M.

Mr. Paura introduced a bill relating to plank turnpike roads. It provides that any road, when completed, may erect a toll gate and collect tolls; when it is finished three consecutive miles they may erect toll gates and collect tolls, but only for one year, unless within that time the whole road or five consecutive miles thereof he complete tolls.

Mr. Foliam introduced a bill to amend the Revised Statutes so as to effect judgment on ejectments, providing every judgment on the action of ejectment rendered upon the verdict shall be conclusive as to the title upon the party against whom the same was rendered, and against all persons claiming, through such party, by title accruing after the commencement of such action.

A bill was introduced setting forth, in view of the increased taxation, every person and species of taxable property should bear its proportion of the burden; that the Governor shall appoint, with the consent of the Senate, a commission of three citizens of the State to report a bill to remedy the defect in the existing laws, submit the full plan of such taxation as was contemplated in the resolution, and report by the 5th of April next. Laid over.

The bill to amend the general insurance act provides for the rotention of funds ample to cover the uncarned premiums. The bill was opposed by Messra Ganson and Frayn and progress reported.

The bill amending the law for the incorporation of fire insurance companies in relation to agencies of fereign insurance companies was ordered to a third reading.

The House then adjourned without taking a vote on the resolutions.

The Assembly assembled at seven, and took up the resolutions of the Committee on Ways and Means on the subject of the national fluancial policy.

Nossrs. Derew and Lyran spoke in favor of the resolutions. Mr. Tracy opposed the resolutions, and made a bold speech in favor of paper currency and broad credit, arguing that the debts of the State and nation must be secure enough if the country is to continue in existence. If not, no sinking fund could avail to secure them. He offered a substitute for the resolutions, leaving the general government free to act on its own policy, but favoring the imposition of a direct tax sufficient to pay the ordinary expenses of the government, secure the payment of the interest on the national debt, and provide a sinking fund for the creation of a principal.

Mr. Alvorus spoke forcibly in roply, taking issue with the policy advocated by Mr. Tracy, and arguing in favor of the democratic system of hard currency and taxation equal to indebtedness as the basis of the national credit.

Mr. Barrier followed in favor of the resolutions of the committee, and spoke at length on the condition of the country and the patriotic obligations on the people to carry it through its difficulties.

At ton o'clock the fluous adjourned without taking the question. The resolutions were made the special order for to-morrow at 7 P. M.

Mr. Raymond withdrew his amendments, and the issue now made is distinct between the decisive position of the committee and the less dictatorial resolutions of Mr. Tracy.

W News from the Minetieth Regiment. PASSAGE TO KEY WEST—DEATH OF A PRIVATE-CHANGE OF TEMPERATURE—CAMP MORGAN, EE WEST—HIGH PRICE OF PROVISIONS, ETC.

The following particulars of the movements of the Nine-tieth regiment New York Volunteers we learned from Charles H. Roberts, of the Quartermaster's department of that regiment. He arrived here on Wednesday night of that regiment. He arrived here on Wednesday night in the steamship Illinois, with despatches from the regiment, and also to procure new uniforms and equipments, of which the men stand much in need.

The Ninotieth regiment, New York Volunteers, commanded by Colonel J. S. Morgan, left here on the 5th inst., on board the steamship Illinois, en route for Key West, Fla. They had a remarkably pleasant passage, and the gradual change of temperature from the biting frost of the North to the warm sunny weather of the South had a decidedly good effect on the health of 'the men. Whon out on the broad Atlantic, and about midway between here and Key West, the pleasant monotony of the voyage was broken by an event which somewhat damped the spirits of the non during the remainder of the voyage. Private Stilwell, of Company I, had been suffering from diptheria and ulcerated throat before leaving Citaile William, Governor's Island, and during the first few days they were out he grew rapidly weres and died on the evening of the 8th inst. He was mainder of the voyage. Private Stilwell, of Company I, had been suffering from dipitheria and ulcerated throat before leaving Castle William, Governor's Island, and during the Brat few days they were out he grow rapidly worse, and died on the evening of the 8th inst. He was buried at sea the following day. The whole regiment—officirs and men—being mustered on deck, in full uniform, and after the soleum and beautiful Episcopal service for the burial of the dead at sea had been read, the body was committed to the deep, and the usual military honors were then paid to the memory of the deceased. The regiment arrived at Key West on the 12th list, and on leaving the ship Captain Rathbone, of the Illinois, paid folionel Morgan a high compliment on the go d behavior of the men under his command while on board his ship. On arriving at Key West the temperature was ninoty-five degrees in the shade—quite a change from the cold weather they had experienced on Governor's Island during the foringht preceding their departure. Their arrival at Key West created an immense excitement. The negroes were in ecstacies with the performance of the fine brass band attached to the regiment, having nover heard anything of the kind before. The secasion proclivities of the inhabitants are very strong and very unmistakeable, although the presence of the large number of Union troops restrains their too free utterance. Colenel Morgan had a fine bouquet presented to him by the wife of one of the mest influential citizens as his regiment paraded through the village after disembarking. The regiment is encamped about a mile from the landing pace. They are under canvass, and have christened the camp Morgan. Large quantities of provisions are stored on the island, sofficient to last for nearly three months. All kinds of provisions are very abundant and very cheap. The last are caught by the men as the tide goes out, when these unwieldly leavies are turned on their backs, toes up, and left for a time to meditate on the flowing nature of all sublunary

In behalf of several female friends, as well as myself, and knowing how ready you always are to take part with what is just, I am induced to trouble you relative to a communication in yesterday's issue (Sunday, 19th inst.), suggesting the removal of skating chairs from Gentral Park, for the convenience of persons skating. Now, this would cortainly be very partial, wrong and unkind; for how then are such persons, some mothers, as are too weak, or past learning to skate, to find recreation while on the ice with their families? The tee chair is all we have for recreation and health in the delightful sports of our lovely pond. Pardon my troubling you, and, if space can be spared in your valuable journal, do please insert this in justice to the many of us who will never be able to skate. Music at the Skating Pond.
TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.
The pleasure of skating being sufficient to attract people to the Fark, there is no hope of the Railroad companies furnishing music, so we must help ourselves, when, nies furnishing music, so we must help ourselves, when, perhaps, the companies will add something. I propose that the Park Commissioners cause boxes to be placed in conspicuous locations, exposing this plan, which is, that the money contributed will be used to furnish music as soon as a sufficient amount is deposited. On skating days there are never less than 10,000 persons who visit the pond—oftentimes 20,000. If but 2,000 of this music tude contribute but a half dime each the object would be accomplished, and good music furnished the next day the ice was in condition, say from four till nine o'clock P. M.

Personal Intelligence.

Socretary Seward and the Comte de Paris arrived in Philadelphia from Washington on Saturday, accompanied by Senor Tassara, the Spanish Minister. Upon arrival Mr. Seward was joined by his lady and daughter, both of whom have been sojourning in Philadelphia, the latter at a boarding school. The object of this visit on the part of the Comte de Paris has been to inspect the various public and private features of Philadelphia, and more especially the prisons, the peculiar systems of which he wished to examine. The party, with Captain Morheine, formerly of the French army, visited the grave of Franklin in Christ church burying ground, Girard College, Independence Hall and the Moyamensing Prison.
